MISSOURI BATTLE

Word has come to us that on June 11th last week, the Union Army has launched a campaign to capture and block all of Missouri's travel networks including the steam train and the Missouri River. This would prove to ensure no Confederates could maintain a permanent foothold within the State. In the face of General Lyon's rapid advance in the state, Jackson and Price were forced to flee the capital of Jefferson City. We at Fort Vancouver have been ordered to prepare to send soldiers to the South if needed. We are currently awaiting word.
